PREFACE.

The following record of the Temple of Bîgeh was made in April and early May, 1910. Owing to the intense heat of the pile of granite boulders that forms the Island of Bîgeh, the development of negatives proved very difficult, and although I managed to obtain ice from the Sudan Government's steamers at Shellal the results were not altogether satisfactory. I have been helped out of this difficulty however by my friend Dr. Junker of Vienna through whose friendly offices I obtained permission to publish in this volume the magnificent photographs of Bîgeh Temple belonging to the Königlichen Akademie der Wissenschaften at Berlin. I trust that in spite of the war both Dr. Junker and the Akademie will accept my warmest thanks for their generosity. But I have to thank Dr. Junker for other favours. He not only gave me much help while I was preparing my manuscript, but also read through the proofs, making several important suggestions and corrections. My best thanks are also due to Mr. Griffith for editing the Demotic graffiti (see p. 47), to Professor Hunt for editing the little Greek inscription on p. 49, and to Miss Porter for again furnishing me with full bibliographical particulars.

PART I.

INTRODUCTION AND TEXT.

The island of Bîgeh which lies between Philæ and El-Heseh (Pl. II, 1), is, with the exception of the last named, the southernmost of the islands in the First Cataract. Like El-Heseh Bîgeh consists of a number of small rugged granite hills<sup>(1)</sup> intersected by winding valleys. At the water's edge, wherever there is a sufficient deposit of Nile-mud, the thrifty inhabitants raise their scanty crop of vegetables and dura<sup>(2)</sup>, while they build their houses (Pl. II, 2 and 4) upon any available ledge on the hill-sides. In one of the valleys, in the centre of the island, is the modern cemetery<sup>(3)</sup> with the tomb of the local sheykh in its midst (Pl. II, 3).

The temple is situated on the east shore opposite Philæ, and, till the raising of the water-level by the Aswan dam, stood some way back from the river. There was a stone quay or landing-stage in front of the pylon, but some little distance away from it. This has now disappeared beneath the water which comes quite close up to the pylon itself<sup>(4)</sup>. Immediately behind the temple rise the granite hills, upon the boulders composing which numbers of graffiti are to be found. In former years the temple was surrounded with houses<sup>(5)</sup> (Pl. III, 1). These have recently been demolished and the precincts cleared of all encumbrances.

Like the temples of Kalabsheh, Dendûr, Ajûala and Halfa, that of Bîgeh also appears to have been erected on a terrace or platform, composed no doubt of the underlying ruins of earlier edifices. The original substructure, however, has <sup>(2)</sup> Even these poor attempts at husbandry have now had to be abandoned owing to the increased height of the water-level.

<sup>(4)</sup> WEIGALL, op. cit., Pl. XII, 4. My description was written in 1910. The temple is now (1913) almost completely submerged when the reservoir is full.

been so enveloped in modern cement that it is now impossible to determine its exact nature (Pl. III, 2). Most of the temple has been destroyed, all that now remains being the gate-way of the pylon<sup>(1)</sup> and the greater part of the façade of the outer hall. This façade consists of four columns<sup>(2)</sup>, adorned with the elaborate floral capitals usual in the Ptolemaic and early Roman periods, combined with a screen or curtain-wall of about half the height of the columns<sup>(3)</sup>.

What remains of the outer hall is the work of Ptolemy XIII, but the reliefs on the pylon gate-way were executed in the reign of Augustus, whose cartouches appear above the head of the officiating king in all the scenes, and also in the dedicatory inscriptions (e. g. p. 4; f) in this part of temple.

The scenes and inscriptions on the exterior walls of the pylon gate-way are executed in sunk relief (en creux), as are also those on the east (exterior) face of the screen, on the columns, and on the east jambs and interior walls of the door-way, of the outer hall.

The scenes and inscriptions on the interior walls of the pylon gate-way, on the west face of the screen, and on the west jambs of the door, of the outer hall, are in low relief.

a. The upper band, is the same as on column 2, except that the -symbols face  $\rightarrow$ .

b. The lower band, is as follows :  $\rightarrow$  «Live the good god, who stretches out the firmament, king of Upper and Lower Egypt, Ptolemaios-living-for-ever Beloved-of-Isis, beloved of Osiris, great god, lord of Abaton.»

SCENE I (Pl. XXV).

The scene is destroyed except for the feet and parts of the legs of the figures, which show that the king stood  $\rightarrow$  in front two gods. The scraps of text that remain are undecipherable.

Beneath this scene there is a dado of conventionalised lotus-flowers and buds.

COLUMN 1 (Pls. VI, 2, XXIV, XXV, and XXVI).

For the bands of inscription and decoration that encircle the top of the column see p. 23.

Laid transversely upon the wings near each uraeus is a -feather, the quill of which terminates in . At either end of the frieze is a winged uraeus whose body is coiled through a -symbol. #### THE ENTRANCE TO THE OUTER HALL.

(Pls. XXIX-XL.)

The entrance to the outer hall divides in half the screen, or curtain-wall, which is built between the columns of the façade to shut off the hall from the open court<sup>(1)</sup> that lay between it and the pylon. This door like the usual Ptolemaic and Roman screen-door<sup>(2)</sup>, has no architrave either on the east or west side of the screen. Instead there is a slight projection at the top of either jamb in which, on the east face of the screen, is the upper socket for the door-pivot. These projections are surmounted by the ordinary palm-branch cornice (Pls. XXIX, XXXIV and XXXVI)<sup>(3)</sup> which is continued throughout the interior of the doorway

<sup>(1)</sup> In this court a church must have been erected in Christian times. The foundation of the apse is still visible in the threshold of the entrance to the outer hall (see the ground-plan on Pl. I, and Pls. XIX, 1 and XXXVI, 2). The arch in the pylon gateway must also have formed part of the church.

EAST FACE.

The North Jamb.

On the edge of the jamb, outside the torus and continuing into the cornice, is a single papyrus stem upon the head of which sits Uto in the form of a cobra, wearing the -crown of Lower Egypt . The snake entwines the stalk of the plant in its long coils.

THE CORNICE.

In the centre of the cornice is a large  with a winged scarab in the midst of it. Above floats the solar disk furnished with pendulous uraei and wings that droop down on either side of the . The uraeus on the north side wears the -crown and the one on the south the -crown. Between the uraei are the signs    « He of Edfu, great god, lord of heaven. » For the whole design cf. p. 32. The edge of the cornice on either side of these symbols is carved to represent the palm-ribs of which the primitive cornice was composed (see PETRIE, Decorative Art, p. 98 and 99).

THE DEMOTIC GRAFFITI OF BÎGEH

BY F. LL. GRIFFITH.

The graffiti of the Bîgeh temple cannot compare in interest with those of Philae. Although little remains of the temple, the survival of the main doorways has preserved a considerable number of graffiti, but they are short, ill-engraved, and in poor condition, and, until the exhaustive researches of the last few years, had not attracted the attention of any copyist. Upon the magnificent photographs of the scenes and hieroglyphic inscriptions made by the expedition of the Prussian Academy the demotic graffiti are shewn on a minute scale, and Mr. Blackman made squeezes of most. The following notes are all that I can gather from a brief study of these materials.

No. 1. In the thickness of the south jamb of the pylon gate (see Pls. V and VI, 1) two or three small graffiti can be detected.

No. 2. On the west face of the north jamb, between the heads of Isis and Horus (Pl. XIV) is a graffito of 7 or 8 short lines in bad condition.

No. 3. On the west face of the south jamb about the figures of Isis and Horus, and in the band above the scene (Pl. XVII) are five graffiti. Over the crown of Horus is «The salutation of Hor (?) son of Pshenthof», badly engraved.

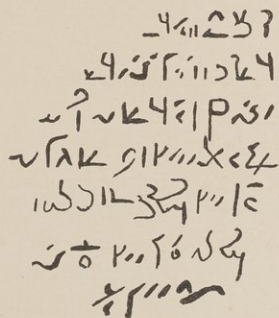

Graffito No. 3.

No. 4. In scene II on the east face of the screen wall (Pls. XXI-XXII and XXIX) are 4 longer lines, the first apparently reading : «His [name] remaineth here before Isis of Philae and Osiris of the Holy Place (i. e. Abaton) . . . ».

No. 5. On the same wall over the head of the king in scene III (Pl. XXIII) is a graffito of 3 lines much injured.

No. 6. In scene I, on the east face of the north jamb of the entrance to the outer hall (Pl. XXIX) are four lines in front of the feet of the king. It begins with the name

Graffito No. 6.

«Esmet-o» and the groups moui, pwer, tpt are seen in the following lines. In front of the head of the next figure below is one line «Pshenthof . . . », cf. no. 3.

Graffito No. 7.

No. 7. On the north side of the passage of this entrance, between the standing figure of the king and the goddess (?) kneeling behind him (Pl. XXXII) is a graffito of 7 lines well preserved : «The salutation of Pakhnum son of Harpaesi son of Harheri son of Panasht (?) . . . . . the Agent, and Esmet p-wer (?) the hierogrammat . . . . . »

No. 8. On the east face of the south jamb (Pl. XXXIV) are two graffiti. The upper one (above the king in scene I) is of 5 lines «The salutation of Pabek son of Harpson . . . .», the lower (above the king in scene III) consists of the name «Petemerawe».

GREEK INSCRIPTION.

This mutilated Greek graffito is engraved on the interior south wall of the pylon gate-way, below scene II. Professor A. S. HUNT of Queen's College, Oxford, very kindly made the following transcription from a wet squeeze, adding a translation and a few comments.

ἱεὺς ἰλῆ· ὡς ἐστὶν

Il. 3 and 4. Σμητυιοσπαεκουι is, I suppose, all one name as εκ πατρος follows, Φα . . . being the grandfather. The αε before κουι could be read αθ or λε.

Il. 7 and 8. Φιλων looks like Philæ, but I cannot read εκ or ἀπὸ before it.

Perhaps we should read [s Σ<sup>8</sup> | ενσμητ . . . or [s (Σ)<sup>8</sup> | ενσμητ . . ., Σεν being the common fem. prefix.

I. 10. Κα after Ισιδς of course means καί, but there has been some correction, for the apparently has got left out.

Il. 11 and 12. επ αγαθω = ἀγαθῇ τύχῃ, i. e. «bonis auspiciis».
