PREFACE.

THE Plates in this volume, a hundred and twenty-three in number, contain facsimiles of a hundred and thirty-two documents selected from those of which descriptions and transcripts are given in the second volume of Greek Papyri in the British Museum. They are arranged in chronological order, and include ten documents of the Ptolemaic period, ninety-one of the Roman, twenty-seven of the early Byzantine (fourth century), and three of the late Byzantine. Since the first volume of facsimiles contained a large preponderance of Ptolemaic and late Byzantine papyri, the two volumes together furnish a comprehensive representation of Greek writing upon papyrus (chiefly of the non-literary type) from the third century B.C. to the eighth century of the Christian era.

A numerical Table is prefixed to the Plates, to facilitate reference.

EDWARD J. L. SCOTT,
Keeper of the MSS.

PAPYRUS CCLXXVI. 6.

A.D. 15.

Handwritten text in Greek script on a fragment of papyrus. The text is arranged in approximately 25 lines, though the bottom portion is significantly obscured by large, irregular white stains. The script is a cursive form of ancient Greek, likely from the 1st or 2nd century AD. The fragment is rectangular and shows the characteristic texture of papyrus fibers.

PAPYRUS CCLX. (3).

A.D. 72-73.

Fragment of an ancient papyrus scroll with Greek text. The text is written in a cursive hand and is significantly damaged, with large portions missing and the remaining text appearing as a dense, overlapping mass of characters. The fragment is roughly rectangular with irregular, torn edges. The ink is dark, and the papyrus is a light tan color. The text is arranged in several columns, though the columns are not clearly defined due to the damage. Some legible words or phrases are difficult to discern but appear to be in a standard Greek script.

PAPYRUS CCLX. (6).

Fragment of a papyrus scroll with handwritten Greek text in two columns. The text is highly damaged and partially obscured by a large tear in the center. The script is cursive and appears to be from a legal or administrative document. The right column contains a list of items, possibly prices or measurements, indicated by the numbers 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100. The text is written in a cursive hand, characteristic of the Roman period. The fragment is mounted on a light-colored background.

PAPYRUS CCLVII. (3).

A.D. 94.

Fragmentary Greek text on papyrus, likely a fragment of a letter or document. The text is arranged in approximately 15 horizontal lines across three columns. The script is a cursive form of ancient Greek, with some characters appearing to be in a different dialect or script, possibly including some Latin characters like 'C' and 'L' interspersed with the Greek letters. The papyrus is heavily damaged, with significant portions missing, particularly on the right side. Some legible fragments include: "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων", "απολλων".

A.D. 94.

Fragment of a papyrus scroll containing ancient Greek text. The text is written in a cursive hand and is significantly damaged, with large sections missing and the remaining text appearing as dark ink on a light, fibrous background. The text is arranged in approximately 20 horizontal lines. The visible characters include various Greek letters, including alpha, beta, gamma, delta, epsilon, zeta, eta, theta, iota, kappa, lambda, mu, nu, xi, omicron, pi, rho, sigma, tau, upsilon, phi, chi, psi, omega, and the digamma (digamma) and sampi (sampi) characters. The text appears to be a fragment of a larger document, possibly a letter or a legal document, given the use of certain phrases and the overall structure. The fragment is rectangular and shows signs of age, including discoloration and some physical wear.

Fragment of a papyrus scroll containing several lines of ancient Greek text. The text is written in a cursive script and appears to be a fragment of a larger document. The fragment is heavily damaged, with significant portions missing, particularly on the left and right sides. The text is arranged in approximately 15 horizontal lines, though many are partially obscured by the irregular edges of the fragment. The ink is dark brown, and the papyrus material is light tan with some darker staining and wear.

Fragment of papyrus with Greek text, showing several lines of writing in a cursive hand. The text is partially obscured by a vertical crease or fold in the center of the fragment.

PAPYRUS CCLV.

A.D. 136.

Fragment of a papyrus scroll with three columns of ancient Greek text. The text is written in a cursive hand and is significantly damaged, with large sections missing and the remaining text appearing as narrow vertical strips. The script is dense and difficult to decipher due to the fragmentary nature of the document.

PAPYRUS CXCVI.

A.D. 138-161.

[Fragment of a papyrus scroll containing approximately 30 lines of ancient Greek text. The script is a cursive hand, likely a later form of Koiné Greek. The text is densely packed and covers the width of the fragment. Due to the fragmentary nature of the document, the specific content of the text is largely illegible to modern readers. The fragment is roughly rectangular with irregular edges, suggesting it is a portion of a larger scroll.]

PAPYRI CCCX. and CCCXII.

A.D. 146 and 147.

Fragmentary Greek text in Coptic script on a heavily damaged papyrus strip. The text is organized into three distinct columns of script. The left column contains several lines of text, followed by a section of text written in large, bold, block letters. The middle and right columns also contain lines of text, with some characters appearing in a larger, more prominent font towards the bottom. The script is highly stylized and difficult to decipher due to the damage and fragmentation of the original document.

PAPYRUS CCCXI.

A.D. 149.

PAPYRUS CCCXV.

A.D. 150.

A fragment of ancient papyrus, likely from a scroll, showing several lines of handwritten text in Greek script. The text is arranged in two main columns, with some lines overlapping or continuing across the break. The ink is dark, and the papyrus has a characteristic fibrous texture. The fragment is mounted on a light-colored paper background.

The text on this papyrus fragment is written in a highly cursive, ancient script, likely Coptic or a related dialect. The characters are densely packed and often overlap, making individual letters difficult to discern. The script appears to be a form of the Coptic alphabet, which was used by early Christians in Egypt. The text is arranged in approximately 25 horizontal lines across the fragment.

PAPYRUS CCCCLXXXIII. (3).

A.D. 616.

Fragment of a papyrus scroll containing approximately 20 lines of ancient Greek text. The script is a cursive hand, likely from the Hellenistic or Roman periods. The text is densely packed and appears to be a continuous passage, though the fragment's edges are irregular and some characters are partially cut off. The ink is dark and the paper is aged and yellowed.
